

Operating System

- ➔ In a nutshell, an OS manages hardware and runs programs
 - creates and manages processes
 - manages access to the memory (including RAM and I/O)
 - manages files and directories of the filesystem on disk(s)
 - enforces protection mechanisms for reliability and security
 - enables inter-process communication

Acknowledgments

Some of the course materials and projects are from

- Ryan Huang - teaching CS 318 at John Hopkins University
- David Mazière - teaching CS 140 at Stanford